The generous 90mm aperture on the 909EQ means this scope boast more light gathering power than most beginner telescopes. In fact, it is has 112% more light gathering ability than scopes at a 70mm diameter - which means you see brighter and better contrast images.
You also get 10mm and 25mm eyepieces with the Saxon Novo 909EQ Refractor Telescope so you can vary your viewing magnifications. Ideal for high-power study of the moon and planets. Since this scope sits on an equatorial mount, we do not recommend it for land viewing.
